

THE DEUTSCHLAND SINKS PILOT TUG IN A COLLISION

RETURN TRIP IS DELAYED BY ACCIDENT

SUBMARINE LINER RAMS TUG WHICH ACCOMPANIED IT OUT OF NEW LONDON HARBOR EARLY TODAY.

FIVE ON TUG DROWNED

Captain Hinsch of Interned German Liner Only Person to Escape With His Life.—Deutschland Returns to Port.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New London, Nov. 17.—Five members of the crew of one of the tugs which accompanied the German submarine Deutschland from New London early today on her return trip to Bremen, were drowned when the submarine and tug collided about twelve miles from this port. The only person on the tug saved was Captain Fred Hinsch of the German interned liner Neckar. The tug, which belonged to the T. A. Scott Wrecking company, went to the bottom.

The Deutschland returned to her dock here at 5:15 a.m. Officials declined to discuss the accident or to tell the extent of the damage inflicted on the submarine.

Collision Smooth Sea.

The tug and the submarine came together in an relatively smooth sea. When it was apparent that the tug was totally rammed, the crew jumped overboard. Captain Hinsch swam to a life preserver, thrown out by the Deutschland crew.

The Deutschland drew out of her pocket at the pier of the Eastern Forwarding company at 5:00 o'clock this morning, accompanied by the tugs T. A. Scott and the Alert of the T. A. Scott Wrecking company, subagents of the Eastern Forwarding company. She carried on her homeward dash a cargo valued at $2,000,000 and consisting of nickel, rubber and silver bars.

The trip down the harbor was without incident, and when last seen by a newspaper launch, the submarine was plowing through a smooth sea at the rate of 10 knots an hour, headed for Montauk Point. The paper launch returned here after following the submarine several miles. At that time the sea was smooth and the moon in its last quarter, cast its rays over the water.

Failure of the tug to return at an early hour, led to much speculation, but it was believed that they would accompany the submarine well beyond the three mile limit.

Five Men Drowned.

The tug sunk by the Deutschland was the T. A. Scott, Jr. The list of dead include Captain John Guenther, Engineer William A. Cato, Engineer Edward Stone, Cook Charles B. Davison; and a deck hand. Eugene Duzan.

Although the Deutschland apparently had been ready for her dash for some days, her departure was rather unexpected. Her skipper, Paul Koenig, spent the evening in his usual leisurely manner about the city. He called at two hotels and shook hands with friends. When asked about his sailing, the captain merely smiled and said he did not know.

Arriving at a theatre, the captain strolled down to the state pier, stopping to converse with persons on the way. In the meantime, thorough preparations had been made for leaving. The machinery of the boat had been tested the day before and the craft was provisioned. First of all the lights at the pier were extinguished and the lights of the E. F. C. of the North German Liner Willehede, scurried down the river to see that the net course was clear. Then the steel net that had protected the entrance to the pocker was hauled up.

At one o'clock the tug Alert and T. A. Scott Jr., of the T. A. Scott Wrecking company, steamed up to the pier. The point bearing a high fence which stood between the Willehede and the dock was pulled to one side, and at 1:30 o'clock the Deutschland went silently down the Thames.

Accident Disturb the Koenig.

Captain Koenig of the Deutschland, appeared pale and shaken as he stepped ashore from his vessel on his return. He had immediately sent word to his president Paul G. Hilken of the Eastern Forwarding company, who arrived at the company's offices shortly afterward and went into consultation with him.

In the absence of authoritative information, considerable speculation as to the cause of the accident was current. Among shipmen the opinion was expressed that the steering gear of the submarine may have been at fault, causing her to run squarely into the conveying tug.

The fact that the tug sank almost immediately after it was struck, was taken to indicate that the blow must have been a powerful one and was taken with unexpected suddenness. Captain Hinsch caught hold of a guy rope and was pulled with the tug. When he appeared on the surface he managed to seize a life preserver, which had been thrown out from the Deutschland and was hauled aboard the craft.

Small Damage to Deutschland.

Baltimore, Nov. 17.—The damage to the Deutschland apparently was slight, according to officials of the North German Lloyd line here, who got into long distance telephone communication with officers of the Eastern Forwarding company at New London, where they learned of the collision between the submarine and her tug this morning. A thorough examination, however, would be made at once, they said, to determine the exact damage.

Harry G. Hilken of Baltimore, president of the Eastern Forwarding company, said that so far as he knew, the only damage the submarine suffered was a twisted stem. It was learned later, however, the undersea boat had been broken in her bow, at least one hole about twenty inches square.

CONSIDER POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR TO OWEN

Roy L. Moran of Fond du Lac is Prominently Mentioned If Attorney Generalship is Vacated.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—Announcement that Attorney General W. C. Owen will undoubtedly resign and enter into the practice of law here has brought about the discussion of a number of candidates who may be appointed to the attorney generalship.

The committee will relinquish his office.

Among those who have been mentioned for the appointment in case of a vacancy are: Roy L. Moran, Fond du Lac; M. E. Dillon, Ashland; L. L. Luse, Superior; E. R. Hicks, Oshkosh; Wallace Ingalls, Racine; George Gordon, La Crosse; and L. H. Bancroft of Richmond.

There are many here who believe that the appointment will go to Mr. Moran of Fond du Lac. He has been the Philipps leader in Fond du Lac county and it was claimed early this week that the executive committee offered him the position of executive counsel during the session of the legislature. He is now believed by many of the Philipps men that Moran would prefer the attorney generalship. But there are others whose claims are not to be overlooked and who by their practice are qualified for the position.

M. E. Dillon of Ashland had a conspicuous record as district attorney of that county and was favored by many for the attorney generalship at the conservative convention here at the end of June.

George Gordon of La Crosse has held the position of federal attorney for the western district and stands high with the administration.

There are men here who believe that he would not accept the position.

The position of assistant attorney general will be held by T. K. Luce of Superior under the term of General E. B. Bronson and L. H. Bancroft was the conservative candidate for United States senator two years ago, having held the position of attorney general for one term and the assistantship before.

Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew of Madison is also being mentioned in progressive circles.

MARINETTE MAYER SUED FOR ASSAULT

Marquette, Nov. 17.—A damage suit which will stir the business and social circles of Menominee was instituted when Clarence E. Peterson, prominent business man, began an action for $15,000 damages against Mayor M. B. Lloyd. He charged that Peterson, malicious prosecution and assault and battery according to complaint. The action is the outgrowth of an attempt made some time ago by the plaintiff to erect a billboard opposite the mayor's residence on Osgood avenue. A personal encounter followed, and then the arrest and prosecution.

TO PROTEST A NEW LAW ON STRIKES

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR DOES NOT APPROVE OF WILSON'S PLAN RELATIVE TO RAILROAD STRIKES.

HARD ON PRESIDENT

Discuss Plan in Detail. Then Unanimously Vote They Are Opposed to It in Its Entirety.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Baltimore, Nov. 17.—The American Federation of Labor by a unanimous vote today declared against the provision of President Wilson's legislative program "making illegal any railroad strike or lockout prior to investigation of the merits of the case."

The committee report which was adopted, recommended that the convention "take an unequivocal position against compulsory institutions in favor of individual and insulation and opportunity for freedom."

The convention had before it that section of the executive council's report dealing with the railroad brotherhoods' threatened strike. Referring to the bill introduced in congress for the purpose of preventing strikes and interruptions of transportation, modified after the Committee on public investigation act, the report says:

"This effort to again subject wage earners to involuntary servitude, aroused the determined resistance of wage earners generally. To their declarations against involuntary servitude, the proponents of the legislation have replied that, although a strike could be made illegal under the proposed law, and strikers criminally tried, individual workers were not deprived of the right to quit work."

"It is pure sophistry that only augments the sense of the injustice that wage earners may feel for industrial wrongs to allow them to quit work and to declare that they do not agree with fellow workers that conditions are so bad that their only hope of justice and fair dealing lies in agreeing together to quit work, that is to refuse to perform their usual tasks—to strike."

Problems of industrial justice and for industrial wrongs, the report concludes, cannot be worked out by laws.

CENTRAL POWERS ADVANCE IN EAST TODAY'S WAR NEWS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Nov. 17.—Prisoners from the invaded portions of France, held in German prison camps, virtually have to subsist on such supplies as are sent to them, and those unfortunate who have no one to look after their individual needs are in the semi-official news again announced today.

On Eastern Front.

Berlin, Nov. 17.—Entente forces have made renewed attacks in strong force on the German Bulgarian positions about Monastir on the Macedonian front, the war office announced today. The attack together with others launched between Malik and Persalek lakes met with success, the state meet says.

Capture Many.

A Rumanian position west of Predeal road was penetrated by Austro-Hungarian forces. In the Rethem region the capture of more than 1,500 men and elsewhere the taking of six hundred prisoners and twelve machine guns from Rumanians is reported.

Bayonet Charge.

Bavarian reserve troops in bayonet charge captured summit of Rungg mountain along the Maldavian frontier of Rumania and held it against heavy counter attacks, it was officially announced.

Recently Dr. Roosboorn said, "I was able to visit several prison camps in Germany in an unofficial way, an advantage in that my visit was not announced before hand, and was able to see conditions as they actually are. The poor prisoners can get no news or packages from their people, and are likely to starve unless help is sent them. Their plight is being relieved to the fullest extent possible by people of Holland, individuals there adopting an individual prisoner and sending packages at least twice a month containing necessities of life. We cannot care for all of them and many of the pitiful appeals we received had to be ignored because of lack of funds."

SHIP MUNITIONS TO PUNITIVE DIVISION

Paris, Nov. 17.—Fifty-four aerial engagements were fought by French aviators yesterday in the Amiens region. In the course of the fighting, Lieutenant Guyenmar, one of the combatants, brought down his twenty-first hostile machine, the war office announced.

Claim Advance.

Berlin, Nov. 17.—On the road from Fiers to Thionville German troops drove the British westward and captured five machine guns.

New Gains on Acre.

London, Nov. 17.—Another attack along the Acre yesterday netted further gains for the British. The war office announced today that the British front has been extended from Eauze to the north bank of the Acre.

British Attacks Fall.

Berlin, wireless to Sayville, Nov. 17.—British troops last evening attacked the German line near Eaucourt, north of the Acre Brook, the war office announced today. This attack failed, as did a night attack to the west of Le Sars in the Somme area, the official statement declares.

Amsterdam, Nov. 17.—Dispatch from Beirut, Syria, says that a war tribunal has passed a sentence of death on Hussein Kemal Pasha, Sultan of Egypt, on the ground that he placed under foreign rule, constituent of the Turkish empire. The death sentence was confirmed, the dispatch says, by an imperial decree.

Abbas Hilmy, who was Khedive of Egypt, when the war began, espoused the cause of Turkey and was deposed in December of 1914. The British government then proclaimed the appointment of his uncle, Hussein Kemal as Sultan of Egypt.

Mr. Moore went at length to explain the board the matter that is proposed.

As far as the question of a survey of the highway between Beloit and Janesville, the county surveyor, who will make the plans and estimates to be prepared in time to build said road next summer, if that should be the final conclusion of the board.

Furthermore, parts of this road being in immediate need of construction, this survey could be used in the regular way in case it could not be built with federal and state aid. It is doubtful if the county will have to pay the expense of survey if the road should be built by federal aid, which, in any event, would be merely nominal.

Asks for Reconsideration.

The question of a reconsideration of the board's vote on the resolution submitted by Supervisor Richardson providing for a survey of the Beloit to Janesville highway, was brought up at this morning's meeting by Supervisor McCollum of the town of Portage. Mr. McCarthy declared:

"One of those on the prevailing side with reference to the action taken defeating the survey on Thursday, he realized that the action was taken without a full understanding as to its importance, and he declared that other members of the board understood the attitude. He urged a more careful discussion of what the resolution contemplated, and asked that Commissioner of Highways C. E. Moore be heard on the subject.

Fruit Juice Used in Milk. Juice of the fruit of the mazurana-dube tree, found plentifully in Brazil, is used in many neighborhoods in place of cow's milk. It is sweet to the taste and milky in appearance, but after 24 hours it turns into an elastic mass similar to rubber in its raw state. The fruit possesses nourishing, pectoral and emollient properties.

To Clean Silver. Add one-half pound of sal soda to eight quarts of water. When the mixture is at a boiling heat dip the pieces of silver in it, then wash immediately and wipe dry with cotton flannel.

STILL SEEK JEWELS STOLEN FROM HOTEL

Police Have the Thief But His Booty Lost to Recovery as He "Ditched" Evidence in Car.

Miss McCloskey is still anxiously looking for her one hundred and two dollars' worth of jewelry, stolen by Harry Crotty from her room in the Wilson Hotel Wednesday morning. Stories of the little urban car, where Crotty told the police he dropped them as being led out after his arrest by a Beloit police officer, has failed to find them and the police of both this city and Beloit believe that the purse containing the adornments was jarred onto a passenger seat. Crotty pushed the purse into a window crevice on the rear platform of the car. At the bottom is a two-inch opening through which they could easily have worked.

Mrs. McCloskey is advertising in both Rockford and Beloit papers, a ring dropped by Crotty as he transferred the jewelry from his pocket to the smasher of the car, went all the way to Rockford, back to Janesville and had passed Yost Park when Chief of Police Champion and George Hiller, proprietors of the Wilson, on their way to Beloit to identify Crotty, discovered the ring on the floor. It was a lucky find, and this afternoon was that his office would be visited by more than a thousand people during the day.

Visitors Shown Through Plant and Working of Telephone Equipment to All.

In order to give the public an opportunity of seeing how telephone communication is carried on, and how "central" works, the Wisconsin Telephone company today held an open house at their local office. All visitors were taken through the building and the working of the switchboards carefully explained.

It was the wish of the officials to show what the operator does when a number is called and also to show what she cannot do, thus doing away with much unnecessary complaint.

Refreshments were served to all visitors throughout the day. A number of classes from the city schools were through the day. Indications this afternoon were that the office would be visited by more than a thousand people during the day.

TELLS OF LIFE IN BIG PRISON CAMPS

Y. M. C. A. Worker Speaks Before Shoplere Moonlight Club—Was In Austrian Prison Camp.

In a vivid picture of life in an Austrian prison camp, Fred Schroeder told over one hundred and seventy-five members of their Wednesday evening meeting of the work being carried on by the Y. M. C. A. behind the battle lines in Europe. Mr. Schroeder has just returned from the war zone, where he has been in the Austrian prison camps endeavoring to make the life of the Russian prisoners a bit more comfortable.

He painted in lurid colors the horrors seen in the wake of a great advance, the awful devastation and the terrible conditions in many of the trenches and in the prison camps. Not alone did he show the more gory side of war, however, for his talk was largely devoted to the work of the international Y. M. C. A.

At the particular camp at which Mr. Schroeder spent most of his time there were 54,000 Russians. Ninety percent of these were illiterate. Here he concluded, was his first task, to help educate these men during their waste of time in prison. Accordingly, he had printed by the M. C. A. a book for the Austrian government which furnish no money for such exercises, a large number of Russian prisoners, and organized a great number of classes for the men, not only in reading, but in writing. In addition he helped the men while away their time by getting up amateur theatricals, bands, orchestras, etc. Mr. Schroeder, it is made such a strong appeal to his hearers that evidently they donated nearly fifty dollars to be used in this work with the European armies. The offer was really unexpected by the Y. M. C. A. men who had planned the meeting and is a forcible evidence of Mr. Schroeder's ability to talk interesting and captivating.

Mr. Schroeder is at this time in Milwaukee, where he is doing community work for the Y. M. C. A., which has recently reorganized the city into districts to facilitate the neighborhood work.

He's the fellow, takes an interest, he's a live one and help, full of vim and pep and energy, no whine for him or yelp; and he makes you feel like living, makes you feel so well and good, radiates the kind of stuff that makes you feel the way you should, makes you know that it is possible to jolly up and laugh, learns you that the proper view of life eliminates the chaff. And you like to meet this kind of chap and like to shake his fin, and you like the kind of chatter that this guy has got to spin; he is prosperous and happy, and he makes you feel the same—he's the kind of guy that hands the dope that helps our little Gingles.

OUR GOVERNOR.

The citizens of Wisconsin have elected for a second time a man who is in every sense of the word the people's personal representative. He is a man who is approachable, a man whose ambition is to give the people who expressed their confidence in his ability, an honest and businesslike state government. As a prominent citizen of an adjacent state who had just returned from a few days' hunting with him at his camp expressed it: "I have met many state executives, but you people in Wisconsin have a governor you should be proud of. He is truly the governor of all the people, and not any political faction. He is the most democratic man I know of in public office, and I do not wonder he was re-elected by such an overwhelming vote."

Governor Philip starts in on his second term in January. Two years ago upon taking office he found many matters that needed adjustment and he set about making radical changes in the state administration, much to the disgust of politicians who thought they should have something to say about state affairs. Handicapped by a majority in the state senate of men opposed to any attempt to reform the reformers of past years and bring order out of chaos, he was unable to accomplish all that he had hoped for, but succeeded in part in fulfilling his promises, and now on the eve of his second term he anticipates completing his work in the coming two years.

The legislature, or a majority of it, appears now to be composed of men who will work in hearty accord with his views and aid him in his work. It must be a satisfaction to him to feel that the people have confidence in his ability to cope with the difficulties of the office and have sent to Madison men instructed to work with him in accomplishing the desired ends. True, Philip may be termed "Our Governor" in reality.

POLITICAL HAND-SHAKING.

The end of a campaign suggests many interesting reflections to the philosophic mind. One is as to the value of the enormous amount of hand-shaking that aspirants for high office must perform. Governor candidates, would-be congressmen, presidential candidates, must stand many hours in line doing the pump-handshake. It is tedious and often exhausting. It is a needless drain on the energy and vitality of a public man. And it gives the voters no logical basis on which to form an opinion as to a man's qualifications for office.

Yet the candidate who remains in seclusion seems to be behind the times. The average man looks at him as "stiff." It is considered absolutely necessary that the statesmen impress the public that he is genial and friendly. A man may have every qualification for good service, but if the notion gets around that he is not approachable, it goes hard with him.

Of course there is some slight basis for this popular feeling, illogical as it is. The average voter feels his own insignificance as compared with the occupant of high office. He wants to be assured that the candidate really has an interest in his fellow men, that he is concerned for their welfare, anxious for their prosperity and well-being. It is a little assuring when a big man holds out his hand in a warm grasp as if he really loved you. It is effective even when there is no real friendly feeling behind an act that is assumed merely as a part of the job.

So candidates must continue to cultivate the art of hand-shaking, fumble as it seems to the thoughtful man. It is an art and the seasoned campaigner saves himself a good deal by learning to shoo along each hand that he grasps, so that the line is accelerated. And it takes a sustained enthusiasm and vitality to put some warmth of friendly feeling into the act.

INVESTIGATE PRICES.

It is a pretty slow day when the government is not asked to investigate something. There are always plenty of politicians whose time is not fully occupied who are glad to undertake these inquiries. Their findings are published in black-covered government reports which at least make good business for the junk men.

A petition is now being circulated by the Housewives' League of New Orleans for an investigation of high prices. Of course this question most urgently needs attention. But the government has worked so long over that little can be hoped from this form of inquiry.

The causes of high prices are pretty well understood now. They are due to such conditions as scarcity of and high cost of land, price of labor, and perhaps more than anything else to the unwieldy and inefficient system of distribution. It is not likely that the government can remedy these conditions. But some of them ought to be met by American enterprise and ingenuity. The American temperament has achieved so many commercial triumphs that it would seem as if it should be able to devise more systematic methods of supplying the necessities of life.

After complaining because bad roads wear out their tires so rapidly, many motorists proceed to oppose the proposition to raise their license fees a few dollars for highway improvement.

It is generally admitted that rallies have not been attended as well during this campaign as formerly. But it doesn't take any brass band to get people to reading the political stuff printed in the newspapers.

The public gets impatient with the tardy election returns, and is convinced in appointing counters the politicians should not consider knowledge of arithmetic a disqualification.

The session of congress will be heartily welcomed as we need the pages of the Congressional Record to lay under the carpets put down after housecleaning.

Our politicians are inaccessible to bribe, but of course they are glad to receive inside information as to when a certain stock is going up.

The fact that people are not afraid of any disease germs does not prove that they would dare admit a breath of pure, fresh air into their rooms.

Neglecting the duty of the franchise is not considered so much of a disgrace in this country as voting on the losing side.

It is a terrible affront to the proud Mexican temperament that the hated gringos should dare to show any sign of self-defense.

Intelligent study of politics enables one to perform his duty as a good citizen and some people feel that it also helps them put up their money right.

Another evidence of the great suffering caused by the drought is the sale of glasses and decanters from ships of the navy.

The women's full skirts are now pronounced very beautiful by the people who called them very ugly three years ago.

Now the poultry growers' tough old hens are being cuddled along for the Thanksgiving turkey market.

As tableware is to advance 20 per cent, perhaps the bride will not receive seventeen duplicate cold meat forks.

How mean fruit will taste to the consumer when the government stops the practice of coloring it artificially!

No tragic results are reported over the election, but one man shot himself because Virginia has gone dry.

Sitting up all night with the boys is the common way of celebrating great moral triumphs at election.

IN A Shaving Parlor.
Said I lately to a Barber,
As he combed my locks,
"Bill, no venom do I harbor Toward a chatterbox."

Neither do I pine this swivel-chair to hurt at you,
When you ply me with your drivel
Which you always do.

And 'tis seldom that I whimper
When you thrust your snout
Deep amid my hair to simper,
"Shall I wash it out?"

But—
"Wipe my ears, as is your fashion,
With a towel, Bill;
And I'll kill you in a passion.
Honstly, I will!"

Infantile paralysis is now said to be due to automobile speeding and it does seem wrong, anyway that parents these days should permit their children such extravagant enjoyments.

A MOMENT WITH THE MUSE

Blow, Winter, Blow!
A winter when there's lots of snow and when the ice is slicker exhibits your system, oh, it's whole-somer than slicker; it fills you full of snap and verse, you talk of current issues, it clears the mind and seems to serve in toughening the tissues.

Step out upon a frosty morn and open your door and you'll see the beauties that adorn the scene that lies before you; upon your walk the snowflake lie, go get a broom to toss; to sweep the same will clear the eye and amplify the muscle. I like a winter that is cold, respite with wintry breezes; it puts the pep in young and old, I love it when it freezes.

A winter that is warm and all and slushy altogether is not what you would really call the most delightful weather. It brings the sneezes and the grip, it does, and if you ask it, I'd rather on the ices slip than slip into a casket. Oh, bring me wintry days that chill, and bring them much

Food Required by the Aged.
A great English physician, Dr. George Cheyne, states that after fifty years of age the amount of food should be decreased gradually. At eighty, if a man becomes so old, he should eat about as much as a child of five. A man should take especial care of himself between the ages of thirty-two and thirty-five, by studying his constitution and regulating food, exercise and pleasure.

BOARD RECONSIDERS QUESTION OF SURVEY FOR TRUNK HIGHWAY

federal assistance.

"I am not favoring a cement system of highways all over Rock county. We have our macadam system fairly well established, but these trunk roads are bound to come. It is important to look ahead into the future. This belt will never be built in practically the only main road which the county has not constructed. The present route by way of Afton cannot successfully stand the entire traffic between the two cities."

Mr. Moore put it up to the board whether they would choose any other road if they had the choice, if they could secure the federal aid as compensation. There is no time to argue to be provincial or sectional in the matter. He called attention of the country members to the liberal attitude always displayed by the city members in the furtherance of county roads and improvements, and urged the country members to lay aside all local jealousies in taking action on the question. As it stands, however, at present, he urged in conclusion, it merely indicated that Rock county was in a receptive mood to receive such fund as is to be expended for trunk line highways in Wisconsin.

Supervisor Richardson also argued in favor of the proposition, and urged the board to take action at once. The discussion carried the board beyond the noon hour, and an adjournment was taken with the resolution still before the assemblage.

County Deposits Awarded.

Other business this morning included acceptance of the bids of the banks of the county to pay two cents interest on only one-third of the county funds which shall be apportioned among the banks after the manner of previous years. F. H. Jackman, representing the banks, was heard on the matter. He explained that it was impossible for banks to offer a higher rate of interest under the present financial conditions. The vote stood 21 to 5 for accepting the bid.

The report of the special committee with regard to the bridge in the town of Rock, which is located on the right of way of the C. M. & St. P. railroad, recommended that the state road and bridge committee take the matter over, and the railroad committee to compel the company to build the bridge and further order that the county commissioner of highways appear before the railroad commission to present his case. In the meantime the road commissioner was ordered to make necessary repairs to the structure.

The report of the equalization committee presented by Supervisor McGowan, was adopted, providing for a basis of equalizing the county valuation at twenty per cent less than the true value as fixed by Supervisor of Assessments Taylor. In his report, this was deemed equitable to all assessment districts of the county. It was ordered that the county chairman, Simon Smith, attend the conference of county chairmen of the state which is called at Madison this winter, his expenses to be paid by the county.

URBAN, NOT BRUNNER WAS THE DEAD MAN

MADISON HOSPITAL MIXES NAMES OF DEAD MAN AND RELATIVE AND POLICE HAVE FRUITLESS SEARCH.

From the obituary note in the Madison paper, a telephone call to the Janesville police department yesterday said it was evident that the attendants at St. Mary's hospital, Madison, mixed matters considerably.

Early yesterday morning the hospital telephoned to the police to look up a man named Florin Brunner, brother-in-law of the man who was killed, but at a short time before, Brunner lived here, they said. A short while later Chief Champion called the dead, with the living—Brunner was the deceased and Urban was his relative here. Then the hunt started.

Although they were able to locate a trio of Frenchmen after the search, the police did not find the relationship to the supposedly dead Brunner. Now comes the information from Madison that Urban was really the dead man as given in the first telephone message.

The death notice was as follows: Frank Urban, 175 Proudfit street, died of pneumonia at St. Mary's hospital early yesterday. He was 50 years old and left a wife and family in Austria. The remains will be held at Powers' funeral parlors until relatives in Janesville have been heard from.

COMMERCIAL CLUB SENDS SPECIAL DELEGATION TO CHICAGO TO INVESTIGATE.

P. V. Kuhn, A. P. Lovejoy, R. H. Wiesner and George E. King are in Chicago today in the capacity of a special delegation of the Commercial Club to investigate several factory propositions that are being considered by the club at this time. All employ male labor, and all desire to leave Chicago owing to labor troubles. Three are going concerns, and one is about to be started. Each proposition would include bonus for bringing it to the city, and one concern, which has already made an investigation of the Janesville field, will have a representative here on Tuesday next to go into the proposition more thoroughly, investigating many questions of labor and other conditions.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a boy eighteen and I have been true to him as I promised I would be. He tells of a girl he went with and how she treated him and tells me that the boy I will prove truer than she. Can you tell me from these actions if he loves me? Is it right for me to explain my love to him if he explains his love to me? (2) If I tell him I never would put up with a drunkard, he says, "Well, you will never have to." What meaning do you get from this? (3) He means that he would never treat me as drunk men sometimes do? FAY.

(1) A boy of eighteen is too young to be seriously in love. He will probably have several girls who are good enough for one to marry her. Don't tell him that you love him until he is old enough to think of marriage and asks you to marry him.

(2) He may mean that he will never drink; and he may mean that as he does not intend to marry you, you have no cause to worry.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a school teacher twenty-five years of age and I have two lovers. One is a widower twenty years my senior and he has children. The other is a soldier in the regular army, being now in the southwest. We are near the same age. He is an orphan boy and has neither parents nor sisters. He often tells me in his letters that I am all he has and begs me not to marry before he comes back from service. He has three years yet to serve. The former has a home, though not quite paid for. The latter has nothing. I am strong—have never been ill a day of my life—and am not afraid of work. The former urges an early marriage. Both are good men. What would you do?

DOUGFUL.

From your letter I should judge that you care more for the soldier. Marry the man you love even if you do have to wait for him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I would be very glad to know the color of my hair, and so I am enclosing a sample. I have a friend who insists that I am a blonde but I don't think so. I think I am a brunet.

(2) Don't you think a girl can live a Christian life and not go to Sunday school and church?

(3) My hair is oily and comes out. What can I do for it? SUSIE.

(1) Your hair is golden, and you are a blonde.

(2) Certainly she can, but Sunday school and church don't hurt anyone.

(3) Wash your hair in fat soap and you may find that no further treatment is necessary.

A remedy for oily hair is made from one dram of tincture of alcohol, one-half dram of tincture of capsicum, two drams of tincture of nux vomica, three-quarters of an ounce of coco oil, and one-half ounce of alcohol. Shake before using.

Massage nightly into the scalp before using. The massage will improve the condition of the scalp and the hair will stop falling.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am seventeen. How often should I go to bed, either by boy friends or girl friends at night if I am home at one o'clock?

(2) What color and kind of material would you use in making your best skirt this winter? Something that will look dressy.

(3) Your skirt ought not to be out nights with girls. If you go with boys you are too young to be out more than once a week.

(2) Burgundy is the popular color this winter. Gorgeous combinations in stripes or plaids are also good. A silk or duckie satin would be the best material.

SCIA TICA.

The sciatic nerve is the longest and (trouble following an injury) are of this nature, and are only relieved by proper support or replacement of the sacro-iliac joint.

The same factors which cause neuritis elsewhere cause sciatic neuritis. Focal infections, injury, pressure, cold, heat, tension, and the extension of inflammation from a joint or other part near the nerve.

The pain follows the course of the nerve, but is worse near the hip and in the back of the thigh. The nerve is pressed upon if the patient sits upon a hard surface. It is relieved when pressed upon by the fingers at any point of its course above the knee. Likewise the tenderness of pain is increased when the extended leg is flexed upon the hip, because this manipulation stretches the nerve. In a severe case the patient stands with knee and hip flexed and spine bent to favor relaxation of the nerve.

Hip joint disease, disease of the spine, sciatica, joint strain, prodded feet and tumor in the lower part of the spinal cord may be mistaken for sciatica.

A good many cases of pain in the sciatic nerve are referred pain. That is, no inflammation is present at all, but some local or general irritant is causing the trouble. For example, a strain or sprain of the sacro-iliac joint—the joint between the base of the spine and the wing of the hip bone. As the nerve passes directly over this joint, injury is likely to cause referred pain down the limb. Many cases of traumatic sciatica

THE TABLE.

Apple Pudding—Line a pan about three inches deep with good rich pie crust.

Fill pan with apples sliced (not very thin), season with a little kind of spice, sweeten to taste, sprinkle generously with flour, fill pan about two-thirds full of water, put on top crust and bake slowly until apples and all are well done. To be eaten warm with milk and sugar. It is cheap and easy to make.

Baked Banana—Two cups bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, one-half tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon lemon juice, three cups bananas cut in cubes. Peel bananas and cut into cubes. Arrange a layer in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, salt and spice, moisten with water and lemon juice. Dot with pieces of butter. Cover with layer of crumbs. Repeat until dish is full. Melt butter in a pan, pour over crumbs and boil one hour. Take out bag, set in over fifteen minutes. This will serve eight persons.

Oatmeal Soup—Oatmeal soup made this way is a tasty and nourishing dish for invalids, who generally dislike sweet food. Slice two or three onions in boiling water. Let brown a few minutes, then thicken with oatmeal. Boil again fifteen minutes. Season with butter and pepper and tiny pinch celery seed. Mashed potato or cream may be added.

Kidney and Rice (for six persons)

Take two beef, or three veal, kidneys. Cut in small pieces and remove the white "core." Save some drippings in a frying pan, put in onions and stir till all are seared over. Then cut up an onion and brown both together. When nice and brown take out and make a "sweet-sour" gravy of one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon sugar, one-half cup vinegar, one and one-half cups water or stock. Put kidneys and onions in gravy and cook one-half hour. Pour over plain boiled rice and serve hot. A little curry powder is a good addition.

CHARGE IT.

Do you have any charge accounts? I can just imagine the horrified look of some of my readers as they mentally answer, "NO!"

And I know just how they feel. A charge account ought not to make one extravagant. It costs no less to pay for things a month later than when you buy them.

But somehow it is apt to make one a little less thrifty about money, unless one is very strong-minded. I once protested that I could be impervious to the dangerous influence of "Charge it," but at the end of a year I realized that I had several things in my possession that I would never have thought if I had had to take the actual money out of my purse instead of saying "Charge it."

W. A. Garry, Our Charge Account.

How unfortunate it is that most of us, even my horrified reader friends, who are so sure they never would, must, willy-nilly, carry one very big, very important charge account.

I refer to the charge account in health which we all carry with Dame Nature.

I have a friend who for many years boasted of her wonderful digestion and laughed at the ordinary precautions which most people take.

She ate her meals any old time. She thought nothing of taking a bath directly after eating. She thought nothing could hurt her.

She frequently bolted down a meal and ran for a train.

ASTHMA SUFFERER

Write today. I will tell you, free of charge, of a simple home treatment for asthma which cures it in a few months and cures it of climate failure. How to Heal Skin Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes, and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist get a jar of resinous ointment and a tube of resin soap. These are not at all expensive. With the resin soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinous ointment, and cover with a light bandage if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Almost any soap will clean the skin and hair. But those who want a soap which not only cleanses but actually helps the complexion and hair are wise to choose resinous soap.

He Faced Them as Coolly and Quietly as if They Were His Own Party.

a naked boy ran forward with a blazing stick to drive off the dogs.

Hardy calmly advanced to the fire between the grim and stolid bucks. There was not one among them who was not itching to drive a bullet or an arrow through his body, and he knew it. Yet he faced them as coolly and quietly as if they were his own party.

The bucks looked toward the far side of the fire, as if for the signal to strike down the audacious intruder. Hardy followed their glances and perceived a blanket-wrapped Indian who sat in the midst of the volcanic bush seemingly as placid and immobile as a Buddha. His face was down-bent, and so muffled in the blanket that Hardy could not make out the features. It was, however, easy to divine that the man was the chief of the band.

Hardy walked around the fire with his most dignified bearing, sat down beside the chief and laid his rifle on the ground between them. He then folded his arms and waited, his eyes fixed on the fire in a calm, unwavering gaze. There followed a silence of a full minute's duration. He knew that it might end at any moment in an attack. His hand gripped the hilt of his pistol on his breast under the edge of his coat. The bucks stealthily shifted their positions until they had completely surrounded the unwelcome visitor. Hardy sat motionless and gave no sign that he observed them.

At last, when the suspense had become almost unendurable, the chief muttered a word to the nearest buck. The man glided back toward the largest tepee. The chief pushed the blanket from his head. Hardy slowly looked aside at him and perceived the powerful profile of Ti-owa-konza, the Thunderbolt. He was to deal with the head chief of the tribe.

There followed another silence. It was broken by the tread of light feet, and a girl appeared beside the chief. Hardy caught glimpse of a gingham skirt, and glanced quickly up at the face of the girl. He was met by the frightened gaze of Oinna Redbear.

"Oh!" she murmured. "It is bad!

You oughtn't to come here, sir. They don't like you. Mr. Van said he was going to tell you!"

A grunt of disapproval from Ti-owa-

Konza cut short the hurried statement.

After a dignified silence the chief spoke to the girl. She clasped her hands and interpreted in an anxious

murmur:

CHAPTER XI.

Light in the Darkness.

Soon Hardy had approached into the circle of the firelight. Some of the Indians started to aim their weapons at him. He held up his right hand palm forward. A deep voice called out a guttural order. The threatening bucks drew apart to right and left and

"No, nor do I wish others to destroy the tribe," answered Hardy. "I do not wish the Longknives to come and make war on the tribe. Yet that is what they will do if I am harmed."

Again Oinna interpreted in her flute-like tones. This time the chief considered before speaking. Oinna's gold-tinted skin turned a sallow gray.

"He—he says he will fight if you do not promise to go away!" she gasped.

Hardy smiled. "Have no fear, Oinna. He is too great a chief to kill a guest in his camp. Tell him I came to the reservation to be a friend to the tribe. Though I am a chief of the Longknives, my heart is good toward his people. It would be foolish of him to kill or drive away the friend of his people."

This time Ti-owa-konza gave the intruder an open stare of contempt. The surrounding bucks glared more ferociously than ever.

"He says you are fork-tongued," Oinna translated the reply. "He says, if you are a friend, why did you say at the council that you would punish all the tribe for the killing of Nogen?"

"That is a mistake. I did not say I would punish the tribe."

Oinna interpreted the answer and the grim old chief's rejoinder: "The Longknife's mouth was big at the agency. Here he is alone in my camp and his mouth is small."

"I raise as I raised at the agency. What Ti-owa-konza claims I said about punishing the tribe is not the truth. There must have been a mistake in the interpretation, or the chief did not hear aright. I had only peace and friendship in my heart. I said that I did not blame the killing of Mr. Nogen on the tribe."

I had only peace and friendship in my heart. I said that I did not blame the killing of Mr. Nogen on the tribe."

This statement failed to break Thunderbolt's mask of stolidity, though some of the other Indians slightly relaxed their menacing attitude. Hardy took off his hat to show the red scar above his temple, and spoke again:

"I do not blame the killing of Mr. Nogen on the tribe; nor do I blame the tribe for the wrongdoing of the bad-hearted Indian who shot me in the head five days ago. The same man, or another man with a bad heart, tried to shoot me, after sundown today, as I came up the trail over on the other side of the broken-topped mountain."

Oinna's interpretation was met by a guttural "Ugh!" of surprise even from the chief. He asked shrewdly: "If the Longknife does not lie, he is not afraid to be in my camp? It is the nearest to the trail."

Hardy smiled and held out his open palm to the chief. "I trust Ti-owa-konza and his people. There is only one bad Indian, and even he may come to feel good in his heart toward me when he learns that I am the friend of the tribe."

Still the old chief's face remained inscrutably immobile. He pondered, and at last made another sharp query:

"The Longknife claims that he is a friend. Why, then, did he say at the council that he will do the same to Nogen and make my people dig stones and dirt from the big holes, without giving them any trade goods for their work?"

Hardy's clear eyes dimmed for a moment, and then sparkled with comprehension. He answered with an earnest sincerity of tone that compelled belief:

"I now see that at the council Redbear mistook much of what I told him to say, or else, in their anger, Ti-owa-konza and his subchiefs failed to understand aright the interpretation. The place where stones are dug is on Indian ground. It belongs to the tribe. No white man has any right to make your people dig stones. If they are willing to dig, they must be given trade goods for their work."

Korein does not of itself reduce flesh, but mixing with the food, it aims to assist the fat-burning elements of the blood to use up and consume the extra fat in all parts of the body.

Korein (commonly known in the pharmaceutical profession as Oil of Korein) is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. You needn't undergo a strict diet while taking it because Oil of Korein capsules work independent of the digestive tract. Smith Drug Co. and other good druggists every where are dispensing Oil of Korein in original sealed laboratory packages. It is worth trying.

A grunt of disapproval from Ti-owa-

Konza cut short the hurried statement.

After a dignified silence the chief

spoke to the girl. She clasped her hands and interpreted in an anxious

murmur:

The response to this statement was unmistakable. The moment that Oinna had interpreted it the last trace of mien disappeared from the bearing of the Indians, and even the chief began to relax. Yet he had still another query:

"Did the Longknife say he would stop the issue to the tribe of all government goods and that he would take away from the tribe all their lands and give them to the white men?"

At last the real cause of the failure of the council was disclosed. Either intentionally or through stupid blundering, Redbear had made the chief furious by a twisted interpretation that had given the exact reverse of what had been intended. With the key to the situation in his hands, Hardy at once began to make clear what he had tried to tell at the council. He explained why the issues of goods would cease the following spring, and what was meant by an allotting of tribal land in severalty. He added that if there was gold on any of the reservation land it would be well for the tribe to sell that part of what they owned; otherwise bad white men would, sooner or later, come in and steal it.

Hardy noted the bearings and distances of all prominent points around him with the eye of one well trained in the art of topography. A quarter-hour brought the little party to the top of the low mountain. Before them on the far side of the mountain pitched down a steep and rocky incline into a narrow valley. The silent Indian guide pointed out a cabin in the pine woods.

More than half convinced of Hardy's sincerity, though with still a lingering suspicion, Ti-owa-konza explained in turn that the tribe was not only willing to allot the farming land of the reservation and sell the mineral land, but a treaty to that effect had been agreed upon by the tribe the previous year. All that remained to be done was for the white chiefs at Washington to agree on the price to be paid for the mineral land and for a delegation of tribal chiefs to go to Washington and put their marks on the treaty paper.

A question or two from Hardy brought out the angry complaint that when Nogen began to dig stones he told the chiefs there would be no treaty, and that the tribe must dig stones for him, or they would receive no more issue goods. Chief Van and Big-mouth (Dupont) had tried to get Nogen to give trade goods to the young men and women who had dug holes. But Nogen would not allow it.

Then a bad Indian had shot Nogen and Van had shot the killer. The tribe did not blame Chief Van. But they had felt bad toward Nogen and they had felt bad toward the new agent because they thought he would do as Nogen had done. Now they would like to kill him when it became known what he intended to do for the tribe.

Dupont was the first to speak: "By Gar, Cap, we sure are mighty glad to see you ag'in all safe and sound! Thought you'd gone and lost yourself on that cussed mountain. The pince was

MARGARET FINDS ENGLISH IS NOT ENGLISH AT ALL

She Has A Lot Of Trouble Speaking United States At London But Finally "Gets" By, Margaret Mason Written For The Gazette. The Argentines speak Spanish tongue. Brazilians Portuguese, And after several weeks or so got quite tired of these.

I began to get to London town where English "she's spoke" and girls would "savvy" all I said. And I "get" every "broke."

That is, I am in London town, I stroll along the Strand, But I don't comprehend them. And they don't understand.

I would I were in old New York Where every child and man Knows how and when and where to talk.

Good straight American.

London, Nov. 17.—We Americans ought to learn three foreign languages: French, Spanish and English. Of course in other countries it helps when you speak the native tongue to gesticulate wildly and talk with your hands. You can't hand out anything like this London though and get away with it indeed your handy efforts alone these lines are all rather foot.

After several desperate attempts at telephone conversations when they greet you with "Are you there?" you have a weak sort of feeling that perhaps you aren't all there after all.

The other day I went out shopping. To explore the secrets of the home ports what would you get? A and to all I can't find a table cloth you know, we all know silence cloths back in Lawrence, Kansas, a yard of chiffon, five yards of cheese cloth, a new suit, some samples for an evening gown, a pair of garters, a pair of dress shields, a half yard of white oilcloth and a spool of thread.

At a time I returned wild eyed but triumphant with a bump sheet, a yard of muslin, five yards of butter cloth, a costume, some patterns for an evening gown, a pair of suspenders, a pair of preservers, a half yard of American cloth, a reel of cotton. Really wasn't it enough to make you red?

Perhaps you think you know a slice of him when you see one, perhaps you are reasonably sure you know a slice of him when you taste one. Ah yes but nothing could be rasher than for you to taste that you know a slice of him when you hear one in London town except that little one "when of gammon went." Now the next time you hear anyone say "Gammon" and "spicing" you'll know that they're speaking by him.

When you want a pound of lard you get a bladder of lard for this commodity comes all neatly packed away in different sized bladders. You get a pound of tomatoes for a can of tomatoes and if you have a cough you get a mixture at the chemists, not a prescription.

For lemon squash, the Duchess sat indifferently sipping until she'd used the muffineer and then found it ripening. Which translated means that the Duchess found her lemonade too sour so she used the sugar shaker freely. Evidently the Duchess possessed the true English figure and didn't have to eat "sweets" which by the way are all candy and bonbons are packed over here.

Because of war conditions police regulations are very strict here now and aliens are required to register at the police station within twenty-four hours after they hit the town. If you should change your hotel during your stay you must notify the police and register over again giving your new address.

With the dire threat of being "had up" you didn't do it, you may be sure I hastened to "bow" street, awful visions of being hung up by my thumbs or other elevating thoughts whirling in my brain. Yet "had up" is merely Londonese for "pinched."

Said his Lordship to me, said he, "All my good men have gone to the front so I only have an old cock for a secretary at present. Now I had heard of dish faced stenographers but—

Looking into my trusty English-American dictonary I found—"Crock-Broken down, horse, old, back"—and there you are.

Oh, it is all very well that the child and the papers are in London but take it from me "we're better to have an English-American Dictionary there too."

WAR ODDITIES

"Dirty Money." London, Nov. 17.—England's new Ten Shilling and Found notes, which are printed on thin paper, become extremely dilapidated and dirty after a few months use. Some tradesmen refuse to take them in bad condition.

STATE ROAD MAKERS AT MANITOWOC MEET

MANITOWOC, WIS., Nov. 17.—Road superintendents from all parts of Wisconsin gathered here today for what is believed to be the first convention of "path masters."

Secretary Primm of the Chamber of Commerce, which is in charge of the convention arrangements, says that this is the first time in the history of the country that road superintendents of any county have been called to assemble in annual convention.

More than 400 road superintendents and supervisors are listed in the official program as eligible to attend. In addition there will be scores from the cities of Manitowoc and Two Rivers and from the country at large interested in good roads who will attend.

RICHLAND CENTER HAS SCARLET FEVER EPIDEMIC

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—Word has been received from Richland Center at the state board of health that an epidemic of scarlet fever has developed there. There are now twenty cases, and the public schools and the public functions have been ordered discontinued. The health officers believe the situation is under control.

REGULAR ARMY MAN WITH LOCAL GUARD

Drill Sergeant Detailed to Help Drill Local Company for Next Two Months.

Interest at the armory of the Second Separate Company and prospects of securing an increased enrollment took a big jump today when Sergeant E. Wood of the Eleventh Regiment of the regular army was detailed to assist the officers of the local militia unit for the next two months.

Sergeant Wood has had much experience in drilling new companies, and will be a great help to the one here; for about two years he has been doing work of this kind in various cities in Wisconsin. The war department assigns certain of its regular men, experts in drilling men, to the various states to be used in increasing the clique of the national guard, then the general details these men to the companies where they can accomplish most.

It is probable that Sergeant Wood will be here until the first of the year and possibly longer; during this time he will take an active part in the direction of the men, and will be present at the drill this evening as it will be the first time Sergeant Wood will meet the men.

The captain further wishes all men who were turned down in the medical examinations to call at the armory on any drill night to get their discharges.

The campaign for funds with which to furnish the hall and help out with the expense of the company is being pushed hard by the committee in charge, and so far has met with good success. It is likely that enough money will be available in the course of two weeks to pay for all needed equipment and furniture for the armory and company rooms.

The social committee is at present planning a number of stunts and dances to be given as soon as the hall is furnished. Some of these will be entertainments for the company men, and others will be given to raise more money for the armory.

Officers and men alike expect great changes and improvements during the next few weeks, not only because of the increased comfort and strengthened organization of the company, but because of the presence of a regular army man to work with and help the boys.

BRYAN AND CAMINETTI TO TEMPERANCE UNION MEETING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 17.—William Jennings Bryan of grape juice fame and Anthony J. Caminetto, commissioner general of the immigration at Washington, are the stellar performers on the program for the annual meeting of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union which opened here today.

The chief work to come before the meeting will be a discussion of ways and means to keep the bombardment of Congress in favor of a national prohibition enactment.

The opening address was made today by Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, Ill., national president.

PLEASANT NEIGHBORHOOD SOCIAL AT COUNTRY SCHOOL

One of the new ideas in pedagogy is to promote harmony and co-operation between parents and pupils. With this idea in mind the country school District 7, town of Harmann, arranged a box social at their school building on last evening. The teacher, Miss Alice Crum, graduated last year from the training school, so this is her first charge, but a most successful one judging by appearances. A large number enjoyed the program of songs and recitations given by the school children. Miss Margaret O'Leary gave several aesthetic dances and Mrs. R. Nichols sang several selections from the music of Carrie Jacobs Bond and others. Robert McClenan played the piano of auctioneer and auctioned off the boxes, which were attractively decorated and brought in the sum of about twenty dollars. This amount is to be applied by the school to the purchase of a set of encyclopedias for their own use.

INFLUENCE OF SPAIN IN AMERICA IS DISCUSSED AT MISSIONARY MEETING

"A Glimpse of Old Spain in New America" was the topic of the Woman's Missionary Society held at the Congregational church on yesterday afternoon. Miss Ewing gave a paper on the growth of Spanish Dominion in America, which dwelt particularly on the self-denial and earnest conscientious work of the early invaders of the new world. A paper prepared by Miss Peterson on the subject, "W. S. M. Influence in America," was the main reason given was the oppression and tyranny of the newcomers and their exampled cruelty to the natives. A report read by the treasurer, Miss Peterson, showed that the dues and thank offering for foreign missions had totaled the amount of $155 for the year. The vice president of the society, Mrs. Reynolds, presided at the meeting, and the secretary, Mrs. Deinuston, was also present. A missionary tea was served at five o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Bladon and Mrs. Deinuston.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY PLANS FOR FESTIVAL

Arrangements for Benefit to Be Held Nov. 24 Are Completed at Meeting Thursday Afternoon.

The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary at the Y. M. C. A. building on Thursday afternoon was well attended and important business transacted. Mrs. John Cunningham presided, and the secretary, Mrs. O. E. O'Brien, was present.

Miss Bearmore read a brief statement of the financial condition of the Y. M. C. A. organization, saying that he knew the ladies were interested in the movement. The treasurer of the auxiliary, Mrs. S. M. Smith, read the report of the business of the year, which showed $164 had been taken in, which was used for wardrobes for the dormitories, showing a balance of over $7 in the bank. Plans were made at this time for a Harvest Festival to be held by the auxiliary in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building on Friday, Nov. 24, under the direction of the house committee. The idea included the use of harvest decorations to be placed under the supervision of Messrs. Bressee, Winstead and Nuzum, the publicity department under the chairman, Mrs. Bearmore, and the soliciting committee in charge of Mrs. Balmer. Mrs. C. A. Thompson was appointed a special committee to wind up business. The festival includes a home baking and food sale. This is intended to include cake, bread, pies, canned fruit, etc., with special attention to baked beans, brown bread and pumpkin pies, as appropriate to the Thanksgiving season.

It is probable that Sergeant Wood will be here until the first of the year and possibly longer; during this time he will take an active part in the direction of the men, and will be present at the drill this evening as it will be the first time Sergeant Wood will meet the men.

RUSH FIFTH WARD SEWER FOR WINTER

Big Ditch Nearly Completed—Will Carry Off Troublesome Waters of Wet Season.

City sewer laying gangs working on the North Chatham street ditch are now on the last section to complete the project, and Superintendent of Streets Peter J. Goodman this morning foresees the completion of the sewer within the next two weeks, providing the present weather holds out. The work is being rushed so that the conduit will be completed in time to care for the excess water which always collects at the meeting line of the First and Fifth wards on Bluff street. The last block after the turn from Chatham street is being laid. The presence of bad sand deposits near the surface of the ditch makes the work slow and hazardous. A twenty-foot ditch is necessary for the big cement sewer, and it has been necessary to plane the sides every foot of the way thus far.

Germs of Farm Prosperity

(Nature's Nitrogen Monopolists)

RED CLOVER

Red Clover.

"Not what shall we do with clover—but what shall we do without it?"

This is the way Wisconsin farmers regard the matter nowadays. Lands that never had a chance, as well as lands which have been tortured into unconsciousness by unscrupulous soil robbery, have responded equally to the influence of the clover family—so-named Trifolium.

The weary "In-jun" lands of certain parts of Wisconsin, and the still more productive lands of other sections, that suddenly ceased to yield bumper crops of wheat and corn, have been soothed, restored, and revived to new years of promise by the help of a generation of farmers who know the value of the clovers.

Red clover, friend of all good grases and grasses, democratic and amiable in its demands, is one of the best liked members of the Trifolium family. According to the late Henry Wallace of honored memory, no plant that grows out of the ground will do more good, in so many different ways, and with less attention to details of culture than will the common everyday members of the clover family.

Instead of leaving tired lands to lay idle and accumulate fertility as best they may, thinking farmers sow red clover and start the automatic nitrogen factory working through the roots of these wonderful plants.

Besides furnishing nitrogen, usually the highest priced plant food and the easiest to obtain, red clover yields an abundance of good pasture and hay, of the right kind to balance every other sort of grain, grass or forage grown on the farm. Dairymen who feed clover may find that it cuts a big hole in their bills for high-priced concentrates.

Red clover needs live stock in the farm scheme to make it fulfill its largest mission. Farms without much live stock and in need of ready money from cash crops, often find mammoth clover preferable. However, for the average Wisconsin farm, the common "medium red" is satisfactory, being well adapted to meadows, on good corn land. For here, if the soil is rich, mammoth clover grows coarse and stony, while alike yields too little clover seed. In proportion to its value, costs far less to market than the ordinary farm crops, such as timothy hay, barley, and potatoes. Growing it does not exhaust the soil fertility like the growing of the other crops mentioned. In growing red clover for seed, however, the largest yields are obtained when the first cutting is harvested early, about June 15.

Medium red clover is adapted to almost any well drained soil, not subject to overflow and not decidedly acid in character. With its adaptability to short rotations with corn and cereals, and the wide range of soil types in which it will flourish, it is no wonder that Badger farmers look upon "Red" Trifolium as the best all around member of that large and useful family.

When sowed alone, about 18 pounds of pure, high germinating seed is sufficient for sowing an acre of red clover. If sowed in with a grain crop in the spring it grows during that season and in the second summer produces one or two crops of hay, or one crop of grain and a crop of seed. As it is a biennial plant, red clover dies a natural death after the second season, but like all members of good families, its work survives.

Down underneath the soil surface the deeply penetrating roots of the plants have accomplished three things that should be mentioned in the obituary notice. The roots have opened the subsoil to ventilation and drainage; they have added nitrogen to the soil in partnership with the bacteria; and finally have left quantities of vegetable matter in the soil to furnish humus.

Frequently, medium red clover continues in a field for some time, partly owing to the germination of old seed which had lain dormant the first season, and partly because of new seed shattered out of the growing plants. It is never safe to depend upon this, so most farmers plow up the field after the second season.

Medium red clover out about June 15 or 20 in southern and central Wisconsin will mature a crop of seed late in August or early in September. Clover for seed is harvested in several ways, but a mower with a clover windrow attachment is the preferred method. Hulling is done after it has gone through the "sweating" process.

At the Marshfield demonstration station in Wood county, medium red clover gave a yield of one and quarters of cord hay the first cutting, and three and a half bushels of seed the second crop. At $10 a ton for hay and $11 a bushel for clover seed, this gave an approximate return of over $50 an acre.

Clover seed, in proportion to its value, costs far less to market than the ordinary farm crops, such as timothy hay, barley, and potatoes. Growing it does not exhaust the soil fertility like the growing of the other crops mentioned. Medium red clover is adapted to almost any well drained soil, not subject to overflow and not decidedly acid in character. With its adaptability to short rotations with corn and cereals, and the wide range of soil types in which it will flourish, it is no wonder that Badger farmers look upon "Red" Trifolium as the best all around member of that large and useful family.

When sowed alone, about 18 pounds of pure, high germinating seed is sufficient for sowing an acre of red clover. If sowed in with a grain crop in the spring it grows during that season and in the second summer pro-

TEXT—See how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand—Gal. 6:11.

Few people realize how much Christian work can be accomplished by letter writing. In some cases a letter is better even than words, for it can be read and reread, and pondered at one's leisure.

Henry Clay Trumbull says that he was led to Christ by a personal appeal from a friend in a letter. What preaching and the ordinary forms of church work had not accomplished for him was done by a few sentences in a note. As he reflected upon this he began to realize the importance of individual work for individuals, and all his life long he engaged in this form of effort.

A prominent business man in Worcester, Mass., went to his pastor and said that he would like to unite with the church. When asked how long he had been a Christian he replied that he had taken the step only a few days ago, and that he had been led to do this at the request of a lady who had written him on the subject. He said that sermons had not made much impression on him, but that this letter from a person whom he hardly knew appealed to him so strongly that he could not resist it.

A little mission Sunday school in Connecticut organized a home department. One of the workers wrote to a friend who was living in the forests of Canada, far from any church, and asked if she would not like to join their home department. The reply was favorable and the literature was sent.

Soon the friend in Canada wrote saying that she thought she could get some of her neighbors to join the Connecticut school if she had the proper literature. In short time she succeeded in getting 25 more members, all of whom became identified with the little mission school in Connecticut, three or four hundred miles away.

They were so pleased with their work that after awhile they organized a Sunday school of their own. Soon they outgrew their accommodations and raised money and built a chapel. Then they said, "We ought to have a Christian Endeavor society," and soon that, too, was organized. This went on for time, but the more they studied the Bible the more hungry they grew, and by and by they organized a church and secured a pastor. And all this came from one letter written by an enterprising worker in a little school several hundred miles away.

Why should not Christians aim to make their correspondence count for the Master as well as their conversation? There might be some letters in which it would not be advisable to introduce the subject of religion, but on the other hand if the subject were uppermost in one's mind, opportunities would frequently be found to say a word for Christ, or drop a hint, or inclose a leaflet. I know a business man who was writing a letter one day when he saw a tract on his table. He inclosed it and mailed the letter without much thought. Then the devil whispered to him, "You have made a fool of yourself. What do you suppose that man will think of you for putting a tract in a business letter?" Being a Christian, he lifted his heart in prayer to God, saying, "Lord, did I make a mistake?"

He came the answer, "What is to hinder you from putting a tract in every letter you write?" "By the grace of God I will," he replied, and for the remainder of his life he followed this practice. He saw so much good coming from this kind of effort that he finally withdrew from business and devoted his life to writing letters and sending out Christian literature of various kinds.

I know a lady who, to help a drinking man, took him into her family as a boarder. Soon he committed some misdemeanor and was sent to prison. She did not forsake him in his disgrace, but remembering the Master's words, "I was sick and in prison and ye visited me," she endeavored to help him by writing encouraging letters. Soon other prisoners requested that she write to them, and by degrees this work increased until finally she was writing between two and three hundred letters a year to the inmates of different prisons.

As soon as a prisoner was led to accept Christ she sent him a Bible and concordance, and tried to interest him in Bible study. If they showed much proficiency in this work she entered their name in a Bible correspondence school which took her protegees at half price. Many of her correspondents became teachers of the Bible, and some of them had large classes in their respective prisons. Murderers, infidels and hardened men of all kinds, have been led to Christ by this humble woman through her prayers and letters. She is a farmer's wife, has had only an ordinary education and has taken in sewing and washing in order to earn money to pay the postage.

State Regulating Sale.

It is, as a rule, impossible to tell from the appearance or the odor of a fertilizer whether it contains a large amount of valuable fertilizing ingredients or only a small amount. There is, therefore, a strong temptation for irresponsible parties to make and sell inferior or even worthless goods as standard fertilizing materials. So much so, that it has been found necessary in all states where the fertilizer business has grown to be of any importance, that the state should in some way supervise their sale. Laws regulating the sale of commercial fertilizers are at present in force in nearly every state in the Union.

Do Good in Right Manner.

The manner of saying or of doing anything goes a great way in the value of the thing itself. It was well said of him that called a good office, if done harshly and with an ill will, a stony piece of bread: "It is necessary for him that is hungry to receive it, but it almost chokes a man in the going down."—Seneca.

FROM MALTA TO ROME.

On turn of the page a new picture appears in this album of Acts. It is so different from all preceding that it commands attention and provokes thought.

We have seen St. Paul among Romans and Jews, now we find him among pagan islanders. He has stood before kings and sacerdists, now he is among superstitious rustics.

We have seen him in marble halls,

now he stands on a rock-ribbed, storm-beaten shore. But as ever he evinces his human sympathy and courteous bearing.

It was no ill-will for the Melitians which blew the Alexandrian wheat ship ashore on their island. Among the dripping survivors of the wreck stood one who for the next three months was to be an almoner of grace to them, preaching the gospel

peace and bringing tidings of good things.

These islanders were worthy of the guest, in whom they entertained an angel unawares.

They were no cruel wrecks, like some maritime folks, plundering and murdering those to whom the sea had been more merciful. They showed a kindness unusual under such circumstances. They received every one,

not merely the officers and passengers, but even the prisoners. They received in turn an hundred-fold for their own humane deed.

As much as the immaterial things of the spirit surpass the mere comforts of the body, so much did what St. Paul gave them surpass what he received from them.

St. Paul's character is exemplified in so small a deed as the gathering of a bundle of sticks. The practical savior of the whole company, he might now reasonably expect corresponding attention from them. But like his Master, he was there as one who served, not to be ministered unto, but as minister.

An asp such as caused the death of Cleopatra fastened on the hand of the apostle in full view of the people. The absolute composure of the victim of this circumstance and the failure of the inveterate and familiar signs to follow amazed the spectators. Quick and extreme revulsions of feeling are particularly characteristic of rustic folk. They are like children, lacking the calm and judicial spirit which comes of experience and culture. Seeing the viper on the prisoner's hand they flew to the conclusion that he must be some murderer, who, though he had escaped the sea, was now at length overtaken by his Nemesis.

But when the prisoner proved immune to the venom they flew to the other extreme and believed him a god.

The supernatural character of St. Paul's office and message was evinced by a sign which was exactly suited to these island-folk, and which would give him entry to the hut of the serfman or the palace of the protos.

For a season a little millennium prevailed over ninety-five square miles of earth—a brief but blissful example of what the world will be like when there is universal righteousness and its concomitants, universal peace and joy.

The ingenuous character of the Melitians is further evidenced by the fact that they did not let their benefactor depart unhonored or laden with gifts which would enhance the comfort of the further voyage.

And so the Christian trio sailed away under the sign of the heathen god.

Paul, Luke, and Aristarchus, behind the

ever since the gospel has been available to the world of the highways and con-flictions of commerce.

The sacred annual makes no mention of the superb scenery or historic associations amid which this memorable day is spent.

The Hebrews were God's favored people.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT GREATER THIS YEAR

Study of Attendances Shows Gain in City Schools—Greatest Increase in High School.

A comparative study of attendance at the various schools of Janesville has been compiled by Superintendent H. H. Fuchs to show the increases in enrollment of this year compared to last year. A study of the results shows that in all schools, including grade, industrial and high schools there were nineteen more pupils in attendance at the end of September than at the time in 1915. At the 1916 mark, or October the increase had jumped to 24.

In all schools there are now forty-one more pupils than there were at this time last year; as there has been no increase in population sufficient to warrant such an advance in school attendance, the rise must be attributed to a spread in the popularity of the value of good education. Though there are no statistics showing the number of students from rural districts in attendance at the city schools this year as compared with the number here last year, it is believed that the number in this class has increased; an evidence of the spreading representation of the school system.

The greatest increases are seen in the enrollment at the Industrial and high school twenty-one at the former, and twenty-three at the latter. In most cases the increase from September to October has been greater this year than in 1915. In the case of some of the grade schools the decrease in the number from September to October in this year is due to the rearrangement of some of the pupils due to the congestion. Pupils whose homes were so situated that a change would involve no inconvenience were transferred from one school to another; this evened up the attendance and cut down the expense of extra teachers.

The rather marked increase in the industrial school from the first to the last week of each school year is due to former grade and high school students dropping out to take positions in the city. All these children who are under seventeen and who have not fulfilled certain school requirements are compelled to take work in the industrial school.

The increase in the school attendance from last year to this is a sensible demonstration of the crowded conditions that exist at that institution. It will be remembered that the school was built to accommodate three hundred and fifty pupils; there are over five hundred there now.

MANY REFERENCE WORKS OPEN TO PUBLIC AT CITY LIBRARY

So many questions on every conceivable subject come to the librarians at the public library that they must devote much time every day to looking up answers to accommodate the curious ones. The collection of reference books at the library is open to all and is so perfectly organized that anyone can find the answer to his question in a short time by consulting these works.

A partial list is given below, in which are some of the reference volumes on hand. No attempt is made to give all the works, but merely examples to show the public what examples are provided by the city for finding out the difficulties that so often perplex the public.

THREE BIG GAMES PLAYED TOMORROW IN CENTRAL WEST

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northwestern, Purdue and Chicago-Illinois Batties Should Clarify Big Nine Title.

THE CONFERENCE SAGE:

	W.	L.	Per.
Ohio State	3	0	1000
Northwestern	3	0	1000
Purdue	2	1	.568
Minnesota	1	1	.500
Wisconsin	1	1	.500
Chicago	2	2	.500
Illinois	0	2	.333
Indiana	0	3	.000
Michigan	0	3	.000

With the close of the season a week off, important games are to be decided in the "Big Nine" championship race tomorrow. Three big games, bringing together Northwestern and Purdue, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and Chicago and Illinois, will hold the interest of Western Conference followers. Ohio State, which is certain of a chance at the championship, will take on Chase in a game that has no bearing on the "Big Nine" title.

The undefeated Northwestern team will face Purdue, determined to keep its slate clean and thus win the right to battle Ohio State at Columbus next week for the conference championship. As the team will be able to take the field with its full fighting strength, Coach Murphy plans to jockey his players about to avoid possible injury that might keep any of them out of the Ohio State fray.

Driscoll in Today. Supporters of the Northwestern squad were cheered by the news that Capt. Driscoll, who has been forced to the side lines because of injuries, will be able to start against Purdue. Cramond, one of the backs, whose ribs were cracked in the game against Drake three weeks ago, has shown such rapid improvement that he will make his debut.

Purdue, though beaten by Iowa and Chicago, both of which teams fell before Northwestern is not regarded as a weak foe. Critics believe that it scores early in the battle, it will be hard to detect. The Boomerangs will have two weeks to work to prepare for the contest and with the exception of Von Neen and Berns, who have been suffering from injuries, all of the regulars are in top condition.

Gophers Favorites. Critics recovering from the effects of previous defeats in form, look for a Minnesota victory over Wisconsin tomorrow. The Gophers, sound by their defeat at the hands of Illinois, are improving, and are out on the board from their record. Wisconsin, however, is strong in every department of the game, and has been drilled for the stiffest sort of battle. Illinois put Minnesota out of the conference race and Ohio eliminated Wisconsin. Cornell State's Chicago has made one of the most rapid of its runs in winning his eleven last condition for the clash against Illinois at Chicago tomorrow. Victory for this players, it is believed, will offset largely their defeats in early season games. The Maroons will use a combination of the battering offense which drew a scathing Wisconsin and the masterpiece of forward play by either Graham or Pershing, will be started of quarterback, but Pershing may later be shifted to a half back position. Every member of the squad is in good condition.

Stage vs. Zupke. The Zupke of Illinois plans to stand up the line-up which overwhelmed Minnesota. The squad has been drilled hard for the last two weeks in preparation for the game and none of the regulars is on the hospital list. The Bini's field has been covered with straw since Monday to prevent it from becoming soggy because of a heavy snow.

Outside the conference, the Michigan-Pennsylvania clash at Ann Arbor promises to be a close contest, even though the defeat of the Wolverines a week ago, it will be the final inter-sectional game with the east this season. The Wolverines came out of the Cornell game last Saturday without serious injury and expect to triumph over the westerners.

Notre Dame, whose team has suffered only one defeat this season, is confident of disposing of the Michigan Aggies in their game at East Lansing.

LOCAL BOWLERS MEET SATURDAY EVENING

Janesville Association Has Two Important Matters to Decide at Session.

All members of the Janesville Bowling association are urged to be present at a special meeting of the organization to be held at eight o'clock tomorrow night at the Miller alleys, on North Main street. Among the matters of most importance to be considered will be the date of the rolling off of the tie which has developed in the Nut League as a result of the games last night.

Another important piece of business will be the election of Janesville's delegates to the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Bowling association, which is scheduled to be held at Watertown at the time of the annual state bowling tournament.

Janesville is entitled to one representative on the state executive committee. Efforts are being made in this way to bring the tournament held in 1915, at Janesville six new alleys will be installed at that time and the city will be prepared to welcome for a period of two weeks bowlers from all sections of Wisconsin.

Under the regulations of the state association the tie game in the Nut League must be decided on the spot by the executive committee of the local association. Total number of pins for three games will decide the titles of the regulars are in top condition.
